Lecture Committee announced a lecture on Friday evening last by Prof. Jones. Subject, "The Fate of the Illini." At the time appointed, an audience of only twenty persons were present, and the lecture was postponed. The small number in attendance was doubtless owing to the fact that the lecturer and his subject were unknown to our people. From the report of the poem which was given in the last Journal, it seems that we did not lose much by its non-delivery here. 807 " The Legislature of South Carolina hapassed a law declaring that the Fourth of Julyshall no longer be observed as a holiday."—Dispatch from Charleston.

From the Washington States and Union The Fourth of July at Auction. BY W. J. FLAGG.

Here's the Fourth of July, going, going ! For the Fourth of July what is bid? With its cluster of memories showing All about what your grandfathers did

And its musty old record declaring Certain rights, in a long rigmarole Teo num'rous to mention, and bearing Certain signatures set to the whole.

Into separate lots we can't part it, But we sell it for what it will bri So give us a bid-just to start it— For the old indivisible thing.

In the days that are gone-who'd have though It's possessors esteemed it so dear, Its possessors esteemed it so dear, Not the gold of a world could have bought it What is bid? Flity cents do I hear?

Fifty! Golng, going! See round it
There is wound an old three-colored rag.
I offer it just as I found it—
What is bid for the Fourth and its flag?

Going, going! I beg you cor, sider We are now on the thir', and last call— Going! gone! (what's the name of the bidder Declaration, flag, memories—all!

Where's the way to Jeannie's house Any child will guide you; Or ye may find the road yoursel', The river runs beside you.

Where's the way to Jeannie's heart That I canna answer; Hereabout or thereabout, Find it if you can, sir.

Is this the way to Jeannie's house?
As straight as you can go, sir;
Down the valley, through the wood,
And by the brook below, sir.

What's the way to Jeanule's heart? That I canna say, sir; A lang way up, a wee say down, In troth, an upco' way, sir.

Some on horse, and some on foot, Come hither many a score, sir: What fluds the way to Jeannie's heart, Maun bring a coack and four, sir.

The Two Villages.

BY ROSE TERRY Over the river, on the hill,
Lieth a village white and still;
All around it the forest trees
Whisper and shiver in the breez;
Over it sailing shadows go
Of soaring hawk and screaming crow;
And mountain grasses, low and sweet,
Grow in the middle of every street.

Actor is sound of smithy or mill;
The houses are thatched with grass and flewer
Nevera slock to toll the hours;
The marble doors are always shut;
You cannot enter in hall or hut;
All the villagers ile asleep,
Never again to sow or reap,
Pever in dreams to moan or sigh—
Silent and falls and low them. Silent and idle and low they lie

In that village, under the hill, When the night is starry and still, Many a weary soul in prayer Looks to the other village there, And, weeping and sighing, longs to go Up to that home from this below igs to sleep in the forest wild

Mr. Belmont was not unmindful of her worth. She had watched with him by day and by night; she had toiled hard to keep both his house and wardrobe clean and tidy distresses-be thought of all this as he sat leaning back in his easy chair one atternoor and as he mused, an idea, a new idea, sud-denly possessed his brain.

Ruth had for some time been engaged to a young farmer of that town, Charles Edgeworth, who, though clever and industrious, had the misfortune, if we may so term it, to be quite poor. Though deeply attached to each other, they determined, however, to postpone marriage until they should have accunulated earnings sufficient to purchase some little cottage and furnish it in becoming style. Mr. Edgeworth used frequently to "fix up," when his day's work was ended, and come ever in his boat to Mr. Belmont's to spend the evening; and it was at one of these visits that he was made acquainted with what we have denominated a singular proposition.

It was at the close of a glorious summer day that Ruth, leaving her aged employer at his favorite seat by the window, stepped out the front doorway, and walked slowly a few rods down the graveled path leading to the water, when she paused, and leaning against a giant elm, stood gazing at the magnificent prospect. The slumbering lake, unruffled by a breath of wind, formed a perfect mirror, reflecting the bold rocks and overhanging foliage of its winding shores; the neighboring country, charmingly diversified with patches of woodland, pleasant farms, quiet hamlets, and beautiful villas, peeping up from amid the trees, with an occasional church spire whose polished vane glistened brilliantly in the rays of the setting sun; while the busy hum of a distant mill, the night-presaging voice of the whipporwill in the adjecent copse, and the merry song of the boatmen as it moniously with the whole, and gave a sort of enlivening air to the otherwise tranquil scene.

As she thus stood leaning in pensive attitude, a small boat, containing one person only, shot out from behind a littl of rocks and shrubbery about half a mile distant, and propelled by the vigorous strokes of an oarsman, advanced rapidly toward where ERRATUM.—In my sketch of the entertainment in last week's paper, two mistakes were made by the printer which require notice.

The second syllable of the word 'injudicious' was represented by a Jew engaged in the occupation of selling a watch to a customer, and not by a 'few' as stated. The College Song sung at the close, was entitled Tpsidee, and not by a 'few' as stated. The College Song sung at the close, was entitled Tpsidee, and not Upsider. In this connection, I would also mention that the performers were appropriately dressed in each scene represented. It is proposed to continue these exhibitions.

An opportunity is in this way afforded for amusement and instruction, which I doubt not many will be glad to improve. I would susgest that a small admission fee be charged.

How to Ruin a Neighbon's Business.
Some time since (so runs the current narrative) the owner of a thriving mutton-pie concern, which, after much difficulty, he had succeeded in establishing with borrowed capital, died before he had well extricated himself from the responsibilities of debt. The widow carried on the business after his decease, and throve so well that a speculating baker, on the opposite side of the way, made her the offer of his hand. The lady refused and the enraged suitor, determined on revenge, immediately converted his bakery into an opposition pie-shop; and acting on the principle, universal among the London bakers of doing business for the first month or two, at a loss, made pies twice as cheap as he could honestly afford to make them. The consequence was that the widow lost her eutsom, and was hastening to ruin, when a friend of her late husband, who was alos a mall creditor, paid her a visit. She detailer, her gievances to him, and lamented her 'oss of trade and fearful prospects. "O's, oh," oh," of the content of the con with certain on the huminess after this dewith the control of the huminess and the bit dewith the control of the huminess and the

The spirit-shop at the corner of the street experienced, an anusually large demand for goes of brandy; and interjestional ejaculanions not purely grammatical, were not merely audible but visble too in the district. It is averred that the ingenious expedient of the widow's friend, founded as it was upon a profound knowledge of human prejudices, had the desired effect of restoring the commerce; the resentful baker was done brown Nov.24. Nervous Disorders.

MIAT is more fearful than a breaking down of the nervous system: To be exert with the or nervous in a small degree is most distressinger of the nervous system of the nervous for where can a remedy be found? There is one ser drink but little where, beer or spirits, or rare bettamone; take no coffee,—weak ten being preferable; get all the resistair you can; take three of four Pilis every night; eat pienty of soil 1, avoiding the use of sbips, and if these golden rules are followed, you got being in much and strong in body, and forget you have any nerves.

There is considerable saving by taking the large sizes.

I Sat Thinking.

I sat thinking—idly dreaming
Of the friends my heart once knew,
Till my fancy brought their beaming,
Laughing faces back to view.
Olden pleasures, seenes of childhood,
Passed before in shadowy train:
Till I roamed once more the wildhood,
And I was a boy again.

Back through years of sin and sorrow
O'er bright hopes that could not la
Till my heart did eager borrow
Sunlight Fom the buried past—
As these plantoms by me glided,
In the twilight dimly there,
I heard again the voice that guided
Mine so oft in infant prayer.

Quickly turning, to be grasping
Her pure hand within my own;
Naught before me—nothing clasping
For the vision fair had flown.
O, my mother, years may vanish;
Disappear in Time's dark sea?
Naught of carthly grief can banish
Thy remembrance dear from me,

reuchre" are there fitted in the game of lite is very ingenious:

"Bob, you are about leaving home for strange parts. You're going to throw me out of the game, and go it aione. The odds is against you, Bob; but remember also that influstry and perseverance are the winning cards; they are the 'bowers,' Book larnin and all that sort of thing will do to fill up with like small trumps, but you must have the bowers to back 'em, else they ain't worth chucks. If luck runs agin you pretty strong don't cave in and look like a sick chicken an a rainy day, but hold your head up and make 'em believe you're flush of trumps: they er miny day, but hold your head up and make 'em believe you're flush of trumps: they won't play so hard agin you. "I've lived and travelled around some, Bob, and I've found out that as soon as folks thought you held out a weak hand, they'd weak, seep on a bold front, but play caustious, be satisfied with a p'int. Many's the hand I've seen euchred cause they played for too funds. Military and oth much. Keep your eyes well skinned, Bob; don't let em 'mig' on you; reccellect the game lays as much with the head as with the hands. Be temperate never get drunk, for then no matter how good your hand, you wont' know how to play it; both bowers and the ace won't save you, for there's sartin to by all I be a 'miss deal' or something wrong.

"And another thing. Bob. (this was spoken in a low tone) don't go too much on the women; queens is kinder poor cards; the more you have of tent the worse for you; you might have three and nary trump. I would be sufficiently the subscribers wish to engage a few five men, as Local and Traveling Agents for their house, to whom liberal inducements will be direct. For particulars, address as above.

Nov. 3. don't say discard 'em all; if you get hold of one that's a frump, it's all good, and there's sartin to be one out of four. And above all, Bob, be honest; never take a man's trick wot don't belong to you; nor 'slip' cards, nor 'nig,' for then you can't look your man in the face and when that's the case there's no fun in the game it's regular 'cut throat.' So now, Bob, farewell; remember wot I tell you and you'll be sure to win, and if you don't, sarves you right if you get 'skunked!' "

CITING GAME.—The following very extraordinary and exciting game of euchre was recently played by old hands at the cards. There was a tremendously large conceases. EUCHRE-VERY EXTRAORDINARY AND Expresent to witness the contest, the spectators numbering nearly thirty millions, besides immense numbers of outsiders who were less interested in the result. The stakes to be played for were the largest ever known to be risked in this game, and the betting was cor-respondingly heavy—the odds always being Mec largely in favor of the ultimate winners :-

The Ring my Mother Wore.

BY LOUIS DELA.

The earth has many treasures rare,
In gems and golden ore;
My heart hath one, more precious far—
The ring my mother wore.
I saw it first, when I, a child,
Was playing by her side;
She told me then, 'twas father's gift
When she became his bride,

Within the heart that holds so dear The ring my mother wore,

READING MATTER ON OUTSIDE. - First page -

The present is emphatically a period of by the square. The present is emphatically a period of excitement throughout this country. Men differ in their opinions, and have allowed themselves to become more like randmen than themselves to become more like randmen than themselves to become more like randmen than the period of the late National Lynn, on the occasion of the late National themselves to become more like nadmen than reasonable beings. The North—a portion of them at least—look upon the South as entirely destitute of all moral and political integrity, seeking to have everything and to do everything in their own way, without any regard to the rights of the North. On the other hand the South seems to regard the people of the North as a set of fanatics, meddling with what does not concern them at all.

Now we at the North know that this opinion Now we at the North know that this opinion secure a copy. We welcome here the festal day,
The day of all days brighter,
Whose beams upon the lengthening way
Make older steps the lighter.

The laugh may not so loudly ring, The house not be so cheary. The house not be so cherry But still the song that now w Is not to charm the weary.

For life has not been wholly sad, Its hours all filled with weepin Riches to make the grateful glad,

The past has had in keeping.

For since among the smiling hills,
With loving friends surrounded
In one were joined your double wills,
Your blessings have abounded. Around your table freshly grew

The clive plants you nourished,
And o'er their ripening fell the dew
As into strength they flourished.

In blooming childhood's fragrant hour, Where loveliness reposes,
The Father gathered two in flower
To plant mid heaven's roses,

And so the gazing, tear-chased eyes See in our "light afflictions,"
As angels walking Paradise,
God's loying benedictions.

And while the strong affections burn, ime works a strange mutation, --And win our salutation.

When storms arise and tempests rock, And when the hour of worship calls.

The Preacher pours contrition, s in his offered prayer there falls The people's great petition. But when the heart breaks forth in song

In festive hours we're meeting,— here's George and Lucy to invite To make a pleasant greeting, Then let the hours with music flow. Years never make us old, nother "twenty-five" will glow, With richer hues unfold.

The silver will grow dim, 'tis true;
A wonder to behold;

And all life's pains and joys will blend In harmony so sweetly,
That when the days of life shall end,
Heaven's blessed chimes will greet thee.

> Now hand in hand A loving band sounding chorus raise, As through our souls The ocean rolls The ocean rolls
> Of gratitude and praise.

Yes, loud and long The strain prolong,
g! ring the chorus out!
For bright's the day, And bright's the way, Then shout the chorus, shout !

And now, dear friend, I've been revenged.

Of that sweet song you sung,
And poured the coals
Of loving souls
Your heart's tendrils among.

Editor, to suggest a few things which came within the circle of my observation, and within the circle of my observation, and which, if carefully pondered, will, I think, result in carnest efforts to correct what is injurious to the community. We hear many accounts of suffering and destitution arising from the general stagnation of business, but do we hear that the grogshops or the gaming tables are in any degree deserted by their througs of devotees? Men who do not earn a dollar a week toward supporting their familia. the morning, cuntil their brains become overwhelmed, their knees quake and they finally sink beneath their ponderous burden, to carry to a cheerless home what will appease their test) and the cravings of a supperless family? Alas no; but what will add irreparable ruin to their misery, run! If those of our young mra who command good wages during the seasons when all kinds of business are flourishing, would lay by their surplus earnings for use during the pinching months of winter, instead of wasting them in cigars, or some more debasing dissipation, they might bid defiance to merciless want. Ten cents for a delicious "Havana" or a glass of fashionable in Bourbon" seems a very trifling affair, and yet many men who cannot keep square with the world, spend a hundred dollars in a year for such innocent (?) pleasures. By this statement it will be perceived that no additional legislation is needed to enable that Company to extend their railroad here. The main obstacle, I take it,—is the unwillingness of our men of property to take shares in the stock and thus aid in its completion. They seem to look upon it as an unprofitable investment which will not yeld any interest. Charles Flaherty died last Saturday of Scarlet Fever—age, about 2 years; an older child in the same family is now very sick with the same disease. There has been two cases of reported Diphtheria, in both of which however the children have reconvened, but one is now suffering from a relapse, caused by to early an exposure to the weather. It is doubthful in suffering from a relapse, caused by to early an exposure to the weather. It is doubthful in the opinion of some physicians whether there has been any real cases of this latter disease in this part of the country. Those alluded to here, did not seen to assume that malignant form which has been represented to be its at tendant, and caused it to be so fatal in its statex.

SLEIGHING, &c.—The recent falls of snow and cold weather has made the sleighing through our streets excellent, and i. has has been much improved by those having the necessary material. The walking after some of these storms, would have been very bad, had it not been for the attention paid to our wants, in this respect, by our Highway Surveyor, Mr. F. H. Johnson, who has run a plough through the snow in our principal streets so as to make a path for foot passengers and children attending school. This was a good plan, and is deserving of the thanks of those who were great. This was a good plan, and is deserving of the thanks of those who were greatly benefitted EXCELSIOR.

For the Middlesex Journal.

It may be reasonable to suppose that a village Lyceum, and especially a Literary Association, would be competent to decide all equestions for the town or nation. But it is not always so easily done. We Northerners may have thought there was but one side to the question, "Is secession justifiable?" which was discussed before the Literary last week, but it takes occasion to reveal the true state of affairs. How much the display of talent on the affirmative was the result of unbiased choice, or of mere benevolence to advacate a weak and unpopular side is not evident. The number espousing the negative greatly preponderated, but the ingenuity of course was on the side of the affirmative. The question was not decided by vote,—it might have been unsafe do so in the prescrib state of high excitement. As a town, though. talent on the affirmative was the result of un state of high excitement. As a town, though,

Fortunately this sentiment will not reach the mass of tensitive beings who hug the institution of slavery and call it divine; for the Middlessex Journal is not allowed to travel in the warm climates of the South Fact, Mr. Editor, though it may be humilisting. The writer has repeatedly employed Uncle Sam and paid him in advance, to carry the Journal to a friend in New Orleans. But the old fellow is not trustworthy; he takes pay and then refuses to convey it out of certain latitudes, for when a letter is received from said friend, it asks, "Why don't you send me a paper occasionally? I have not regelved one." But do not let this disposition to suppress your weekly sheet discourage you, Mr. Editor, "for so persecute they" the South Reading Gazette, and other Northern periodicals. The Two Tongues.

The words of the younger were as sweet
As the smile of her ruby lip.
But the tongue of the oldest seem'd to move
As if venom were on its tip!

At the well a beggar accested them, (A sprite in mean disguise;)
The eldest spoke with a scornful brow,
The youngest with tearful eyes.

Cried the fairy," Whenever you speak, sweet gir Pare gems from your lips shall fallnever you utter a word, proud maid, From your tongue shall a serpent crawi.

And have you not met with these sisters oft In the haunts or the old and the young: The first with her pure and unsuited lip— The last with her serpent tongue?

Yes! the first is good nature—diamonds bright On the darkest theme she throws; And the last is slauder—leaving the alime Of the snake wherever she goes.

Oh, no; thou didst not die!
Thou hast but lain the soul's frail vesture!
And source to that pure height.
Where day serene is followed by no night.
And where the discipline of mortal wee
No shadow over thee can ever throw.

With chiliness in the mystery of his touch They gently fade away, As melts the morning star in golden day; They leave the places they have known bel And through the white gates of the morning go

We would not call thee back To the frail flowers that wither on our track-Perhaps to have thy feet
Piered by the thorns that we so often meet—
For thou art in that failer world than ours,
Where Love mourns not the fading of her flowers

Why should we weep for thee,
When thy pure soul from every ill is free?
Our only tears should flow
For those, the loved, who linger still below;
From whom the light of thy dear smile is fled;
Who feel, indeed, that thou art with the dead.

We know the gloomy grave
Holds not the spirit which our Father gave;
That loving, lustrons light
That made the sphere in which it moved so bright,
Is shining with a clear and quenchless flame,
Rekindled at the source from whence it came!

Incomment.—The Boston Journal of Moaday last, stated that the large Bell used by the Bell-Everett party in the late campaign, was to be placed in the steeple of the New Church in this town. This is not correct, as that bell has been purchased by the Trintarian Congregational Society in Medford and is to be used by them.

There must be hope for the Union so long as there are so many union men among the common people at the South. They have been told, doubtless, what wrongs the North has done them, and they may partly believe it. But the leaders of such movements, sooner or later, are glad to retire from the field and hide themselves from the common people, men who, if once thoroughly aroused, awere everything before them like the mountain avalanche. transaction of business with a cheerful heart and an active mind. Unlike other medicines which have been devised for the same object, the BITTEES do not act spa-modically, or with a temporary power—the influence of the remedy is lasting. And if a patient will but give some attention to securing proper exercise, after the relief has been afforded, he need fear no return of the affliction. The debility natural to the eneroachments of years upon the bodily frame is also alleviated by this great strengthening medicine, thus enabling the aged to pass their declining days in physical case; whereas they are now suffering from extreme weakness and nervousness. To this venerable class of people, HOSTETTER'S BITTERS may be commended as invaluable, The propriators of this invigorator have in addition, a deep gratification in assuring NUISING MOTIFIES that they will find the BITTERS the best and cafest of restoratives. Very few medicines are sanstioned by physicians as proper to be administered during the period of nursing; and this has obtained an universal preference.

Little Ones-Coing Home.

"They are going—only going— Jesus called them long ago; All the wintry time they're passing Softly as the falling snow. When the violets in the spring-time Catch the azure of the sky,

They are carried out to slumber Sweetly where the violets ile.

They are going—only going—
When the summer earth is dressed,
In their cold hands holding roses
Folded to each silent breast;
When the antumn hangs red banners
Out above the harvest sheaves,

They are going-ever going-Thick and fast, like falling leaves.

All along the mighty ages All along the mighty ages
All adown the solemn time,
They have taken up their homeward
March to that serence elime,
Where the yateling, waiting angels
Lead them from the shadow dim,

To the brightness of His presence Who has called them unto him. They are going -ouls going -Out of pain and into bliss -Out of sad and sinful weakness Into perfect holiness.

Snowy brows—no care shall shade them; Bright eyes—tears shall never dim; Rosy lips—no time shall fade them; Jesus called them unto him.

Little hearts forever stainless-Little hands as pure as the Little fact by angels guided Never a forbidden way! They are going - ever going! Leaving many a lonely spot: But 'tis Jesus who has called them-Suffer and forbid them not

Hugh Henry, a former president the Vermont Railroad, while attending the recent session of the Legislature at Montpelier, Vt., made a remark to a friend that h was a little deaf, but could see as well as ever. He afterward went to the hotel to dinner, an after being seated stuck his fork into a dough nut, and commenced to peel it, supposing i to be a potato. Young Meade, the Brattle boro' sculptor, being a witness of the "optical allusion, retired and produced a life-like sketch of the act of peeling the doughnut, and under-neath was the following inscription: "I am a little deaf but can see as well as ever.

Lars Vonved.

Lars Vonved in strong dungeon lay, Condemned to die at dawn of day. A black robed priest he came to pray At midnight with Lars Vonved

! Outlaw, repent ! " the holy man His ghostly counsel thus tegan;
"Confess! repert! for short's the span Allotted thee, Lars Youved."

We all must die-Heaven's will be done And yet I hope to see the sun Rise many a day ere my race be run!" Undaunted cries Lars Vonved.

" Oh! clasp thy guilty hands and pray That outraged heaven in mercy may Pardon e'en thee—for at dawn of day Thoul't surely die, Lars Yonved."

More mereiful than man is heaven! And by all hopes to be forgiven

I tell thee, priest, thou oft hast shriven
Worse sinners than Lars Vonved."

"That cannot be," the priest replied, "For guiltier wretch yet never died Than thou, who'lt perish in thy pride, At dawn o' day, Lars Yonved!

Lars Vonved gave a laugh of scorn—
"Think not, good priest, the coming morn
Will see the fearless heart out-torn
From the bosom of Lars," Vonved."

"Farewell, thou boasting fool! I go
And leave thee to eternal woe!"
"Nay, good priest, do not leave me so!"
Softly cried Lars Youved."

The priest turned, round and ere he knew, Was pinioned and mouth garged too, His robe stripped off and his hood of blue, By the outlaw, bold Lars Vonved.

"Sie priest I must make free to borrow Your dress awhile—but do not sorrow; They'll set you free at dawn to-morrow, So farewell!" cried Lars Vonyed.

Anecdotes of the Envolution.—Mary Kright was one of those devoted women who sided to relieve the horrible sufferings of Washington's army at Valley Forge, cooking and carrying provisions to them alone through the depth of winter—even passing through the duptosts of the British army in the disguise of a market-woman. And, when Washington was compelled to retreat before a superior force, she concealed her brother, General Worrell—when the British set a price on his head—in a cider hogshead in a cellar for three days, and fed him through the bung.

The Tolling Bell.

I heard the sad tolling bell, sweet friend,
The slow, tolling bell to-day;
And dark and sad were the thoughts that came,
When its last sound died away.
I thought of the beautiful years, sweet friend,
The fair, bright beautiful years,
That seemed in store for the pure, young heart
Whose Me is vuenched in tears.

Yes, quenched in wild, bitter tears, sweet friend, For all of the precious love Of a snow-white soul was thrown away,—

She hid her grief in her heart, sweet friend,

And passed like a rose away ; Away to a fairer world, sweet friend,

Oh, how in my immost sout, weet friend,
Do I loathe the thought of him,
Who could quench the light of that happy life—
And its beautiful sunshine dim.
And I thought of the silent conscience bird
Now hushed in his wily breast:
Of the song it would sing in the coming years—
And the spirits wild unrest!

And the shrinking back from death's narrow sea,

Looks over the water chidingly, Forever, ever more. These, are the dark, sad thoughts, dear friend.

With the single exception of Good Fileday, Ash Wednesday is the greatest fast in the Christian year. We commence on this day our preparation for celebrating the holy season of Easter, the highest festival which it season of Easter, the highest festival which it

The season of Lent extends over a period of forty days, exclusive of the intervening Sundays, which are festivals throughout the year. The particular number forty has always been fixed upon in commemoration of various remarkable fasts which are recorded in Holes. Woburn, February 13th, 1861. 20—3w markable fasts which are recorded in Holy markable fasts which are recorded in Holy Writ. Thus we read in the sacred Scriptures that Moses fasted forty days and forty nights previous to receiving the law on Mount Sinat. So, too, the prophet Elijah fasted for the same length of time in the wilderness. Our Lord, wisso, before His temptation, fasted forty days and forty nights before the tempter came unto Him. In remembrance of all these, but more especially of the last mentioned, the Church appoints that her children shall, year by year, and mount wild to find the same tand and the same tand all persons included the same tand to the same tand to WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY .- So Wistar's Balesman of Wild Cherry.—So long as disease prevails, and it is the lot of himanity that it always will, so long will the sifering seek for the best remedy which science and skill have discovered for their relef. In our climate especially, coughs, cold, and lung affections are all-prevalent. Few if any are fortunate enough wholly to escape their effects, the slightest form of which, if neglected, is liable to lead to scrious results.

If then, a remedy is to be had which is cough wealth of Massachusotts: neglected, is liable to lead to scrious results. If, then, a remedy is to be had which is equal to cope with the worst features of disease, which is speedy in action and permanent in reflect, it should be known to all. Such a remedy does exsist in Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, and we confidently recommend it as such.—Bridgeport Advertiser and Farmer. Every word of the above is truth, as all the afflicted among us can be satisfied by making trial of the article, which can be obtyined at all the druggists.

Dyspersia.—The story of this remarkable medicine and its success in obstinate cases of Dyspepsia, Asthma, and general debility of the system, places it among the most wonderful discoveries in medical science, and has given it a reputation far beyond any remedy known for these complaints, in all their various forms. The Oxygenated Bitters contain nothing which can intoxicate; and the medicine has no similarity whatever to the various alcoholic mixtures disguised as whittens," both the foregoing Petition it is not of the production of the productio ous alcoholic mixtures disguised as "bitters," being purely a medicinal compound, in which are combined the most valuable remedial agents, and a peculiar oxygenated property hitherto unknown, but highly efficacious in all complaints arising from weakness and derangement, or prostration of the stomach. We hear of fresh triumphs every day from the use of the Oxygenated Biters. The cures it is effecting on every side are without precedent. People who have suffered to mony open and opper and object to the distingtial receding and recording said copy, and granting letters without precedent. especially of the last mentioned, the Church appoints that her children shall, year by year, observe a solemn fast as preparatory to the celebration of the greatest of her festivals.

In the primitive church, this season of humiliation was observed with the utmost strictness. Throughout Lent, the Christians of the first ages extended the hours of fasting until evening, while, on ordinary occasions, the fast closed at 3 o'clock. During Lent, too, marriages were altogether forbidden, and any festivals which occurred during that season were transferred to the succeeding Sunday or Saturday, which latter day was a festival, in the early Church.—N. Single and Married.

Tis happiness, a single,
A life so void of care,
No teasing, plagueing, scidding wife,
O! 'tis a blessing rare! The club, the ball room, or the play, You go there when you please; No wife with questions the next day Your very soul to tease!

No curtain lectures greet your cars You slumber sweet and light; You have no little crying dear To break your rest at night!

MARRIED.

O! what Joy a married life, So happy, bright, and gay! A pretty little, loving wife, To chase dull care away. And when the toll of day is o'er, Ah! then is home a bliss! She foully meets you at the door And greets you with a kiss,

Then who would ever single be, And lead a dreary life? Old Bachelor, just list to me, Go get yourself a wife!

The prayers were drawing to a conclusion, when the officiating minister deviated from the afternoon service into another with from the afternoon scrvice into another with which she was unacquainted. This was a novelty to Miss P—, who was in the habit of attending public worship at a fashionable place, thapel in London. When this interpolated service began her co-powers stood up; she, as a matter of course, followed their example, and, on doing so, was surprised to see all the construction, excent themselves, either sitting. and, on doing so, was surprised to see all the congregation, except themselves, either sitting or kneeling. Her companions presently knett down. She again followed their lead, and by paying great attention to the succeeding prayer, she discovered that it was a thanksgiving for safe deliverance from the great pain and peril of childbirth. Pittsburg Pa., Jan. 27th, 1829.

We have had in use the Saponifier, manufaced by the Pennsylvania Sait Manufacturing Company, both for the purposes of our Printing Offices and dwellings for a length of time. We find that no article renders us the satisfaction it does for the same use-particularly, we have discovered that it is a superior article for removing the old ink from our forms. We find it six times cheaper than potash or any other substitute; we therefore take much pleasure in giving you this voluntary testimonial of its good qualitins, knowing it must e.me into general use.

Do they Miss Me at Home? BY A TRAVELLER.

Do they miss me at home?—do they miss me 'Twould be an assurance most dea', To know that my name was forgotten, As though I had never been there.

To know that the tailor and landlord, And the banks where my paper is due, And hosts whom I now cannot mention, Had banished me quite from their view.

Do they miss me at home?—do they miss me When the market for money is tight. And collectors in haste are pursuing Their debtors by day and by night?

Do the friends who once loaned me a 'fifty,'
And the others who loaned me a 'ten;'
Heave a sigh of regret when they miss me,
And wish they could see me again!

Do they miss me at hom ?-do they miss me When no longer I'm seen upon 'change; And do those who were wont to assist me, Say, 'his conduct's infernally strange?'

Does the Shylock who loaned me his money Co bear me to re io s inknown Look in vain for occasion to dun me, And wish I aga'n were at home?

Do they miss me at home?—do they miss no Trwould be an assurance most de r. To know that my name was forgotten, As though I had never been there.

But I know that my memory lingers Around the dear spot as I roam, And as long as I've my wits and my creepers. They'll miss me, they'll miss me at home.

SEASONABLE QUERIED,-The self-examinin society has proposed the following queries to all people about this financial period:

3. Do printers eat, drink and wear cloth-

4. If they do, how do they get it?
5. Do I pay for my paper?
6. Is not this particular period a first rate

time to call and pay up?

When Lamartine was in the ascendant at the early part of the revolution of 1848. his merits were being discussed at a club of artists and authors. "Ah!" said a clever young author, "he and I row in the same boat." Douglas Jerrold, who was present, turned round, and said, "But not with the same skulls."

A little ragged child was heard to call from the window of a mean-looking house to her opposite neighbor, "Please, Mrs. Miller, her opposite neighbor, "Please, Mrs. Miller, mother's best compliments, and if it's fine weather, will you go a begging with her tomorrow?"

Musical.—A great portion of the fashionable performances of the present day consists of a series of notes, striking upon the ear in quick succession, and chiefly pleasing from their very rapidity. The hand and not the head, is the fortune of the modern piano player; and true musical feeling ranks second to long fingers. If a performer can put the whole piano fairly out of tune in five muters, it is a feat to be proud of; and should he audibly break two strings, the effect is materially heightened. In these displays of musical slight of hand, the beauty and eloquence of the art, are to a certain extent, lost sight of; and many of the audity and cloquence of the string was a conditional properties. The player is not determined by the plays of musical slight of hand, the beauty in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at his finded to the pay in order (as they say) to "look at and cloquence of the art, are to a certain extent, lost sight of; and many of the auditence pay large sums for a seat near the pianist, in order (as they say) to "look at his fingers." ### OUR NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

OUR NATIONAL AFFAIRS.

It is clearly impossible here at the North, to foresee or predict what is to be the final result of our present national troubles. The intelligence derived through the press is so uncertain and contradictory that almost no reliance is to be placed upon it. There is no question, however, that the secessionists of the South are terribly in earnest, and will do all they can—especially the leaders—to carry out successfully and trimphantly their desugns against the General Government. Our firemen proved themselves on this occasion as on previous ones worthy of the name they bear. After the fire the Woburn Companies were furnished with a collation.

Dancerous Sport.—On Tuesday Evening last, while a daughter of Mr. Harrison Parker, last, while a daughter of Mr. Harrison Parker, last, while a daughter of form the foot of the house, a rifle ball came through the window and dropped on the floor. It was about three-fourths of an inch in diameter and had apparently spert its force before its entrance into the house. It appears that some boys were practising firing in the vicinity and this ball fired by one of them into the air accidentally took the direction which it did. The practice of allowing boys the indiscriminate use of fire arms, is fraught with.danger to themselves and others.

boys the indiscriminate use of fire arms, is fraught with, danger to themselves and others. In this instance although no damage was done beyond the breaking of a pane of glass and the fright to the immates of the house, yet it shows the danger of such proceedings and should 1 ad to their prohibition or the exercise of more care in their use.

The editor of the Medical Reformer remarks that, as in the spring and early summer, the ensibilities of the digestive organs are increased, with the inspiring music of Barnes' Band, and continued until the wee sma hours warned them that it was time to retire. The Sons of Temperance may well be pleased with this their second annual Levee.

Steam R. R.—Considerable talk has been made in town in consequence of a petition signed by four hundred persons being presented to the Legislature, asking permission to construct the Stoneham branch railroad without building bridges which is now required by a law which has been passed. The railroad will pass over five or six roads, neither of which could be bridged without great cost to the company. It is hoped that the petition will be granted.

The Unitarian Pastor of this town, and lady, have recently been made the recipients of choice presents, from their congregation.

Miscellancous.

Last to Fade of all is Fancy. Day by day old sorrows leave us—
Leave us while new sorrows come—
Come like evening shadows, length'ning—
Length'ning round the spirits' home.

Day by day fade Friendship's flowers -Flowers that flourished in the past— Past, oh, Past!—once bright andiglowing— Glowing once, but dimmed at last!

Last to fade of all is Fancy-Fancy, ever young and gay—
Gay as when young Love was dreaming,
Dreaming, dreaming, day by day.

DEATH OF THE JUST. DEATH OF THE JUST.

It matters little at what hour of the day
The righteous fall asleep; death cannot come
To him untimely, who is fit to die.

The less of this cold world, the more of Heaven,
The briefer life, the carlier immortality.

Peculiarities of the Reindeer.

BY BAYARD TAYLOR,

The greater part of Lapland is a high, barren table land. Along the western coast of Norway the land is marshy, and the mosquitos are worse than on Fire Island. A more tos are worse than on Fire Island. A more bleak, dismal region can hardly be imagined than these Artic regions. Human life would be impossible but for the reindeer, What the camel is to Arabia, the reindeer is to Lapland. Most of the reindeer are not much larger than a Newfoundland dog. The hoof is divided into four or five compartments, so that it covers a large space when the animal puts it down, but when he lifts it up, the Pinnos and Melodeons, that the overse a large space when the animal purs it down, but when he lifts it up, the parts come together. This prevents he sink the parts come together. This prevents he sink the parts come together the prevents he sink the parts come together. This prevents he sink the parts come together the prevents he sink the parts to the parts come together. The large the most all with the horse would find it aimst impossible to move at all. With a small guardiant provided the parts is closed to the parts in the large that th puts it down, but when he lifts it up, the parts come together. This prevents his sink-follows:

John Hewitt, of Carthage, New York, who has had one of the Horace waters Planos, writes as follows:

ward in a snowdrift. The line by which he is driven is fastened around your wrist, so that you are dragged for some distance by your arm. The object of having the rein fast to your wrist is to operate as a drag on the deer when thrown out, so as to stop him before he gets more than a hundred yards. But even when you have learned to keep your balance, which is no easy accomplishment, you can never prevent him, every now and then, and always at the most unexpected moment, jumping off the track, whirling round and facing you, staring at you in the most provoking coolness, as much as to say, "What are you going to do about it?"

The Laps have an infinite deal of patierce.

and facing you, staring at you in the most provoking coolness, as much as to say, "What are you going to do about it?"

The Laps have an infinite deal of patience. I have known one start a baulky deer fifty times a day. The food of the reindeer is a sort of coarse moss which grows all over the table land. With his hoof he digs down and gets it—not with his antiers, as some have a food of the above books have been issued the past eight the stable land. With his antiers, as some have a food of the above have and the demand is rapidly increasing fulfished in small numbers, entitled Anniversary and Sunday School Music Blook, Nos. I and 2, price $1$ and $2$ per hundred, postage ic. More than $3.0,000 copies of the above books have been issued the past eight the past of the above books have been issued the past eight the past of the above books have been issued the past eight that the past eight the gets it—not with his antlers, as some have supposed. Indeed, they shed their antlers, about the beginning of winter. The attempt has been made to accustom the reindeer to the use of hay in the north of Scotland, but it failed. At the commencement of the sun to come down to the sea-coast, and it is in possible to restrain them. The Laps, there-fore, pick up and follow them. The cause of this "secession movement" is supposed to be the attack of a small insect, or perhaps the desire for salt,

I was much struck with the wonderful intinct, or perhaps power of smell, by which the deer found the hidden track under the snow. On those exposed plains the wind fills "Polick," "Arabian v ar cry March," the very but the farrows of the sledges in half and "Vissoviania Doniella Marrica," "Reading fol "Crinotine Waltz," and "Lameers" Quadrille cents each. "The Empire or Reichi's quadril a new dance, and "The Hiberman Quadrille cents each. Many of these pieces are paye smooth even surface as easily as a hound traces the scent of the game. And behind prices him follows the caravan in single file all silent, white and mysterious as a procession of ghosts—no sound but the breathing of your own deer and the crunching noise of your sledge. As you sit thus alone, hour after hour, in the strange half light and half darkness of the Arctic winter sky, a singular sort him follows the caravan in single file all silent, ness of the Arctic winter sky, a singular sort of mental hallucination seems to come over No. 3.8, Braodway.

Nystic Ponn—As the Act for supplying the city of Charlestown with pure water has passed both byanches of the Legislature, and will undopticelly be signed by the Governor and accepted by the voters of said city, it may not be uninteresting to describe the Pond and the manner in which its waters are to be conveyed to that city. From the report of the Committee and other sources I glean the principal facts. This body of water, formerly known as Medford Pond and laturely and Mystic River, and is about five miles from Charlestown,—has an area of 234 acres, with a drainage area or water shed of 31 squarer miles. It is divided into two portions of nearly equal area, connected one with the other at a point known as the "partings" or "narrows," about one-third of the nothing the town of Winchester. The Stolen Ham. There is truth, a Scripture truth, To all my readers known: Worse than an infidel is he, Who cares not for his own."

A preacher with this truth in view
Laid by his winter's store;
With other good things, nice and rare,
Were hams—some three or four.

One day, a neighbor who had fixed Upon the hams, his eye.
Thought, as he lived in trying times,
That one of them he'd try.

He took it home, but peace of mind Did from his home depart; He felt as if the stolen ham

Was hanging on his heart.

He could not bear his load of guilt,
And, to correct the wrong,
He sought at once the pastor's house,
And took the ham along.

The preacher, busy with his book, Heard some one at the door, Who entered, while his mind was fixed Upon the sons of Noah. He'd read of Japhet, Shem, and Ham;

Who said, "Dear sir, a ham I stole,

And much I do repent it;
I have it with me, here it is,
To you I do present it." The preacher said, " I cannot take

The stolen ham from you, But let me proffer kind advice, And tell you wnat to do.

" By deep repentance you are moved, Let that your heart control, Go to its owner, and to him Return the ham you stole."

" I have done that," replied the man, "Just as you have advised me, But he refused to take the ham, Which very much surprised me."

Well," said the pastor, " having done The best that you could do,
As he refused to take the ham,
It now belongs to you.

"Go! take it home, and ne'er again Be guilty of a theft." He took the ham, and the advice, And with both he left.

And nover did the man regret
The steps which he had taken,
For thus he saved his peace of mind,
And also "saved his bacon."

And also "saved his bacon."

ABSENCE OF MIND.—What is commonly termed absence of mind has never been considered incompatible with the presence of vigorous intellect. The late distinguished mathematician Professor H—n of Arberdon was notorious for bis absence of mind. Emerging hastily one day from the arched gateway at Kings college, he stumbled over a cow, which chanced to be passing. In the confusion of the moment the Professor raise his hat, exclaiming, "I beg your pardon madam!" Walking in Union street, a few days afterwards, he did accidentally stumble days afterwards, he did accidentally stumble stumbers, can be a support of the second stumbers of the second against a lady who was walking in an opposite direction. In sudden recollection of his for of the oner adventure, he call out, "Is that you again Publish

Isn't there a great deal of well-deserved satire in the following aneedote?-and could it not, if tested, prove to be of a pretty wide application ?

The meeting was adjourned to Monday April 22d, to hear the report of the Committee of Investigation and to act upon several other matters which were passed over. The town hall was crowded with the citizens and every appropriation and plan was closely scrutinized. There was rather too much of a disposition to cut down the appropriations beyond reasonable sums, which may be pardonal from the feling existing in regard to the probable losses of the town by its Treasurer. But I have aiready taken up too much space in this paper and will reserve till my next farther comments, and an exhibit of the expenditures of the town for the past year.

The Brook.

BY ALFRED TENNYSON. f come from haunts of coot and hern, I make a suddon sally; And spirkle out among the fern, To bicker down the valley.

By thirsty hills I hurry down, Or slip between the ridges, By twenty thorps—a little town— And half a hundred bridges.

Till lest by Phillip's farm, I flow To Join the brimming river; For men may come and men may go, But I go on forever.

I elatter over stony ways, in little sharps and trobles I bubble into eddying bays, I babble on the pebbles.

With many a curve my banks I fret, By many a field and fallow; And many a fairy fereland set, With willow-wood and mallow.

I chatter, chatter, as I flow, For men may come and men may go, But I go on forever.

I wind about, and in and out, With here a blossom sailing; And here and there a justy trout, And here and there a grayling ;

And here and there a foamy flake Upon me as I travel; With many a silvery water-break Above the golden gravel

And draw them all along, and flow
To join the brimming river:
For men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever.

I steal by lawns and grassy plots, I slide by hazel covers; I move the sweet forget-me-nots That grow for happy lovers.

True Friendship.

Few persons know what true frendship is, and fewer still know how to appreciate the blessings of true-hearted friends. Life is little worth, wanting friendship—all desire to possess it, and all are miserable without it. True friendship discovering the proposes it is not all a second to the consumptive feeble-ness of our girls results from the thin shoes possess it, and all are miserable without it. possessit, and all are miserable without it.

True friendship dies not; it is as immortal as the soul. We all need a confiding friend upon whose faithful bosom we can lean our weary heads, one to whom we can lean our story of our joys and our sorrows, and our hopes for the future.

When busy with the cares of life—when weary of its toils and cares, sis it not sweet to hold communion with a spirit kindred to our own! One who can "rijoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that do rejoice, and life of the friends too often gather around us, and place their offerings upon friendship's holy shrine; but such friends linger with us only while prosperity is ours.
